Now let's get on with the dates!

Introduction

Congratulations! Here is some great bonus information for dating. Use these ideas to enhance your dating experiences.

The information you are going to read is compiled from my own personal experience of over 20 years of active dating (15 years as a single and 5 years being married), my wife's experience with 11 years of dating (6 years as a single and 5 years being married) as well as interviews with some of the most fun, creative, and romantic daters that I have known through the years. So this is the information I wish to share with you—some of the tools to be as successful as you can be in your dating experience. This is information that I wish I had when I embarked upon my dating journey over 20 years ago.

Read and enjoy!

Three Great First Date Ideas

First Date - Dating Tips

Lets get real, a dinner and movie is not a great first date. Let's try something different, something interesting, and something where you can interact and get to know each other better.

We are shooting for conversation and a movie just doesn't cut it. Dinner is fine as long as it is not too ritzy or uppity, because then you are concentrating on the dinner instead of your date. Make your date feel relaxed and comfortable. You don't want the first date to be a marathon, save some energy and intrigue for the next date.

101 Great First Dates

FIRST DATE NUMBER 1.

Lunch Date. A really good first date, especially if you don't know each other, is a lunch date. This is very comfortable for your first date; usually it is best if your date meets you there. They know it will only be an hour and can leave at anytime since they met you there. They will be around other people and they know they will be safe. This first type of date should be at some kind of local café. Avoid the chain restaurants; these are usually packed, have a long wait, and certainly aren't very interesting. Going to a local café shows ingenuity, adventure, and style. These cafés are usually quieter and you will get a chance to talk and get to know each other. Find one that has a "cool" reputation and offers a variety of food and beverage.

FIRST DATE NUMBER 14.

Dinner on the Boardwalk. If you live near a coast, this will be very memorable. Call and get reservations so you can sit near a window overlooking the ocean. Or better yet, if they have an outdoor table, sit outside and enjoy the breeze. Try some calamari or something different for an appetizer. After dinner, take a walk on the boardwalk or a drive on the coast; get some ice cream and sit on a bench and eat it as you listen to the waves crash and watch the sunset.

FIRST DATE NUMBER 17.

Crabbing. Crabbing is also a lot of fun and a great first date. If you live near the ocean, you usually don't need a license. Sometimes you can just catch them as they wash into shore with the waves. When they wash onto the shore, get a stick and let them bite it. Carry them while they are holding onto the stick and put them in a cooler. Go to your house and cook them and enjoy! Three Great Romantic Date Ideas

Romantic Date - Dating Tips

Romance, Romantic, Romancing. Romance means something different to everyone. The trick is to find something that you and your date will both enjoy.

The romantic date will set the mood for love and passion. How you act on this date is also extremely important. Do not show insecurity or neediness as that will kill the Romance for most people. It is important that you are at your best so you can get the desired result from your Romantic Date. Remember, suspense and anticipation are of utmost importance in creating the romantic feelings. Whether you are single or married, try to create moments of anticipation, surprise and suspense in your relationship. The more you can do this, the more romantic your relationship will be!

101 Great Romantic Dates

ROMANTIC DATE NUMBER 20.

An Evening of Poems. Before the date, go to the library or bookstore and buy some romantic poetry books. It is most interesting if you can get books from several different eras: 16th century, 17th century, 18th, 19th, and now. For the date, read each other several poems from each book and talk about what the author must have been feeling. The most exciting part occurs next. Since you have been reading the poems and your creative and romantic juices have been flowing, take pen and paper and write your own romantic poems about each other and your relationship. Read these to each other. Express your feelings about your lover and your relationship. As an after-date bonus, have these poems written or typed on stock or starch paper and framed in a glass picture frame. Then give them to your date as an expression of love.

ROMANTIC DATE NUMBER 57.

Dinner in an Atrium. Order an appetizer from one of your favorite restaurants, an entrée from another, and dessert from another. Pick them all up. Hopefully they are close to each other so that your food does not get too cold. Beforehand arrange to get evening access to an office building that has a huge Atrium. Have table clothes and candles ready. Bring your date and the food to the preset Atrium location. Enjoy a quiet dinner in the spacious garden Atrium setting.

ROMANTIC DATE NUMBER 100.

Foot Massage. Take your date to a Bath and Body Works. Smell and test all of the lotions and creams they have available. Then choose one or two of your favorites and purchase them. Take him/her back to your place and give them a great foot massage. Some tips to make everyone more comfortable: 1) Have some wet wipes and each of you wipe off your feet before you begin. 2) If you're not sure how to give a foot massage, rent or buy a book about foot massaging that you can use for a reference before you begin. You don't want to interrupt the massaging by looking at the book. Give your date your full attention and it will bring some passion and good tension into your night!

101 Great Romantic Dates e-book
When you are in the Mood!

Worth every penny..

Exactly what I expected and then some. Fun reading and some really GREAT ideas. I Would not be surprised if I tried everything in these booklets at least once over the next year or so. Quality thinking went into these ideas and I recommend these to any current single.

Three Great Cheap Date Ideas

Cheap Dates - Dating Tips

First off let me define cheap. A dinner and a movie - is that cheap? A decent dinner will cost at least $25 a person; appetizer, drinks, entrée, desert, plus tax and tip. So the bare minimum for a dinner for two is $50. Then you go see a movie - at $7.50 a pop, plus popcorn $5 and drinks $3 each you are looking at 2 tickets for $15, drinks and popcorn another $11, for a total of $26. Now add that to your $50 dinner and you are at $76, plus gasoline and any parking lot fees. So I would not call dinner and a movie a cheap date unless you are Donald Trump or one of his children. How cheap is cheap? I guess that is up to you, but for the purpose of this eBook, cheap is being defined as less than $20- that is almost a third of the price of dinner and a movie.

Now just because it is a cheap date, doesn't mean that it isn't a romantic date, fun date, or creative date!

101 Cheap Dates

CHEAP DATE NUMBER 15.

Support the Local Farmer. Actually go to a farm where you can walk into the field and pick whatever fruit is in season—strawberries, peaches, apples, etcetera. Then go back to your place and make a pie with the fresh fruit you just picked. The charge is usually per bushel, so if you get a bushel or half-bushel of peaches or strawberries, that is what you will get charged for. The fun here is that you are out picking the fruit, fresh from the farm.

CHEAP DATE NUMBER 18

Gossip Magazines and Ice Cream. Go the grocery store, buy some fancy ice cream, and then buy two gossip magazines like Star or National Enquirer. Go to your place or outside with a blanket, eat the ice cream, read the magazines, and laugh at the funny stories in them. Or enjoy reading and talking about the latest scoop involving your favorite celebrities. If you buy the Ben and Jerry's pints or the Haagen Daz pints of ice cream, then it is easier to eat outdoors—very tasty. The cost is: fancy ice cream at $3 per pint (get one for each of you) and magazines at $3 per magazine (get one for each of you). Switch magazines when you are done with yours, and try each other's ice cream.

CHEAP DATE NUMBER 32

Early Morning Garage Sale. This is an early morning adventure. Get Friday's newspaper, find all the local garage sales, and map them out. Early Saturday morning, pick up your date, go to the local coffee shop and get your fix, then head out to as many garage sales as you can. Rummaging through other people's junk is great conversation. You have $20 to spend, minus your coffee.

As you can see these are fun, interesting, creative and cheap. To make this cheap date a romantic date is not difficult at all, especially when you have 101 Dates to choose from. To get all of these dates and dating ideas - and never be at a loss for something fun, creative and interesting to do, download the eBook 101 Great Cheap Dates.

Three Great Free Date Ideas!

Free Dates - Dating Tips

Some of the best free dates are also the most creative dates. Free Dating should also consist of Romantic Dates and Fun Dates. Don't be shy as these may possibly be the most memorable dates you ever go on. Choose the ones that seem like the most fun to both you and your date. These dates are as much about sharing each others personality and finding out your dates likes and dislikes as they are about having a great time. As always, make sure you check out the weather conditions first and that you understand and are prepared for whatever risks are involved in your activity.

101 Free and Creative Dates

FREE DATE NUMBER 33

Ghost Towns. Find a good map of the area that points out where the ghost towns are. Drive to one or two of them. For this date it is best that this is not a commercial ghost town but a real one. When you get there, try to locate where the various houses were and the different parts of the town. See if there are any old relics lying around.

FREE DATE NUMBER 54

Visit an Ostrich farm. Ostriches are interesting enough, and there are Ostrich farms popping up all over America. This is due to their lean meat and breeding capabilities. Take a tour of one of these. The owners are always happy to share the Ostrich love.

FREE DATE NUMBER 64

A Movie Script. Write a five- to ten-minute movie script together. Film it on a video camera. Show it to your friends and enjoy some ice cream or popcorn while you are watching it. If you are really creative, do different genres: one Romance, one Comedy, one Drama, and one Adventure movie. This could span into several dates.
